

Guide for S2P logo

S2P certification is a person certification in accordance with ISO 17024, and the logo expresses the qualifications of its holder as an individual to perform tasks related to the safety of playgrounds and recreational sports areas. An employer can also use their employee's logo to indicate the skills found in the organization. However, S2P certification is not a general certification for a company.

Descriptions of the S2P certification levels and an up-to-date list of persons who have the right to use the logo can be found on the website www.s2p.fi under S2P certification > Records of certified.

Modifying of the logo

As a rule, the logo may not be modified in any way. The official logos are:

If the name of a certified person is not desired in the employer's marketing material, the name of his or her logo can be pixelated, for example:

Otherwise, the logo may not be modified, e.g.

- Do not change the color.
- Perimeter texts must not be rasterized.
- The S2P logo in the middle must not be changed.
