

Use of the S2P certification logo and certificate

Demonstrate your competence

S2P certification applies to an individual. You may use your own logo to demonstrate your valid certification and certification level. Your employer may use your logo to present the competence of its staff, but the logo does not indicate certification of the company, a product or an inspected site.

Use the current logo

Download your annual logo and certificate from your profile at login.s2p.fi > User portal. Do not modify the logo; you may resize it while preserving its proportions and legibility. In your employer's marketing materials, only the person's name may be pixelated. No other changes to the logo are permitted. In particular:

- Do not change the colour.
- Do not pixelate the text around the edge.
- Do not change the S2P logo in the centre.

You are certified, not accredited

Do not describe yourself as “accredited” or “FINAS-accredited”. FINAS accreditation applies to the S2P certification body owned by Safe to Play Oy and based in Finland (accreditation code S061), not to certified persons, their employers, S2P partner companies operating in different countries or their employees.

You may display the complete certificate

You may use your own A4 certificate as issued, including the FINAS accreditation symbol shown on it. The FINAS symbol must not be extracted from the certificate or used as a separate image, for example on web-sites, in email signatures or in inspection reports.

Stop using the logo and certificate when your right to use them ends

If your certification expires, is withdrawn or is suspended, stop using the logo and certificate to demonstrate current competence. Your former employer must not use your logo to present the competence of its current staff.
